

Fotis Dulos' Attorney Reportedly Considering Movie, Book Deals

Hollywood and the publishing world have called on Norm Pattis, after he defended the accused murderer of Jennifer Farber Dulos.

By Alfred Branch, Patch Staff

Attorney Norm Pattis, who defended the late Fotis Dulos against murder and kidnapping charges, has received movie offers and book deals about the case, reports Connecticut Law Tribune.

Dulos was accused of murdering his estranged wife, Jennifer Farber Dulos, who has not been seen since May 24 of last year. He committed suicide in January, and her body has not been found.

Pattis said he did not know how many movie and book offers he has received, but added that he is not entertaining any offers at the present time.

He is planning to appeal the recent decision not to continue the murder case, which Pattis had hoped to do in an effort to posthumously clear his client's name.

Attorney Norm Pattis, who represented the late Fotis Dulos against murder charges in the killing of Jennifer Farber Dulos, reportedly is mulling over movie and book deals about the case.

That Pattis has received book and movie offers is far from a surprise, considering the international interest in the case, and the ongoing mystery surrounding Jennifer Dulos' disappearance. ■